Puritan Audio Laboratories are specialists in the management and control of electrical interferences that at worst destroy your valuable audio and visual equipment and at best limit your enjoyment of it.

Our simplest and lowest cost step to protecting your equipment and enhancing your audio visual pleasure is The Guardian.

The Guardian is an economical way to upgrade an ordinary power strip to a protecting and performance enhancing unit.

The Guardian provides massive surge protection coupled with highly tuned defence elements to purge the interference that suffocates your audio visual systems signal processing circuits. Installing Guardian will ensure your system is free from the electromagnetic clutter that previously stifled its optimum performance.

Enormous benefits can be gained by installing individual Guardian units on each mains circuit or room of the house. This quiets down the overall electromagnetic environment within the circuit, thus providing cumulatively beneficial effects for not only your audio and visual systems but your own personal health and wellbeing.

Research from many respected authorities indicates that the “Dirty Electricity” that is carried in our normal household supply can be debilitating and very harmful to our health. Installing Guardian protective filters around the home greatly reduces the interference that generate “Dirty Electricity” in our homes and family environment.
